DISCLAIMER: the following measurements and stress states can differ from your real values. This user study focuses on user-friendly design and not on the accuracy of the parameter measurements.

Section 1: Device and App Setup

Task 1: User Profile Selection

Create and setup your own user profile (you can use your own name and age).

Task 2: Device Pairing

Pair the device (named nano esp32) with the app via Bluetooth.

Task 3: Measure Individual Measurements

Measure each parameter separately. Heart rate, galvanic skin response, oxygen saturation and respiration rate.

1. For each parameter, answer:

- Heart Rate

What was your heart rate?

- Galvanic Skin Response

What was your GSR?

- Oxygen Saturation

What was your blood-oxygen saturation?

- Respiration Rate

How many breaths/min were measured?

Task 4: Combined Measurement

Use the "All" function to measure all parameters at once.

2. What was your stress level?

Section 1.2: Questions

3. How easy was it to pair the device?

(1 = Very difficult, 5 = Very easy):

☐1 ☐2 ☐3 ☐4 ☐5

4. Did you encounter any issues?

☐ Yes ☐ No

Section 2: Data Visualization and Interpretation

Before starting the following tasks, please return to the user selection screen and use the username 'Mika'.

Task 5: Data Display

Observe the gauges for each parameter.

Task 6: Stress Indicator

Review the stress indicator and open the info dialog.

Task 7: Historical Data & Filtering

View your historical data for each parameter. Filter data by "Today," "Last 7 days," and "Last 30 days."

Switch between graph and table views.

What was the lowest and highest heart rate in the last 30 days?

And what about the last 7 days?

Task 8: Information panel

Click on the information panel of each parameter. Read through the information.

Task 9: Threshold Configuration

Adjust your min/max values for heart rate and GSR gauges.
